Sch. Actor will now fit for swordfishing. Sloop Venus is fixing up on Parkhurst's railways.

A large fleet of seiners anchored at Provincetown yesterday.

Boats engaged in trawling halibut off Cape Sable got a fair start last week, the weather being fine. The doings are not very large as a rule, but the prospect is considered pretty good. Alewives were used for bait, which some fishermen think not altogether suitable. Codfish on the same grounds is reported fairly plentiful.

Sch. Arbutus arrived at Liverpool, N. S., on Monday. Capt. Wharton reports very bad weather and two severe gales this week.

Mackerel Notes.

FEW HAULS OFF HERE.

Seining Fleet Found Small Schools Were Shy.

MAGDALENE CATCH WAS GOOD.

Sch. Agnes E. Downes' Day's Work Netted $1500.

The mackerel fleet which was working on fish off here yesterday, did not make any large hauls here during the afternoon. Sch. Angielena, which set near the breakwater, got 50 barrels and is at Boston with them this morning. Sch. Elsie F. Rowe got a haul of 50 barrels, and sch. Richard Lester got 5000 at one set. Both vessels are at Boston this morning, the fish bringing 17 cents apiece.

This morning, steamer Alice M. Jacobs and others of the fleet were working on gsh between Bass Rocks and Seal island and about a mile off shore. Several sets were made and some small hauls are reported.

The harbor this morning seems to be alive with little mackerel, about three or four inches long.

Sch. Agnes E. Downes made quite a record yesterday. Capt. Edward Wentzell had his breakfast at home, then went down to the wharf, got underway and went out. He struck a school off the breakwater and brought them in, selling to the Gloucester Fresh Fish Company at 14 cents apiece. There were nearly 11,000 fish in the trip, about 7000 large and the rest medium fish, which netted a stock of about $1500. After the fish were out Capt. Wentzell went home to supper and then came down and went right out. Pretty quick work, have breakfast and supper at home and the mean time make a $1500 trip.

The fare of sch. Edna Wallace Hopper sold to John Pew & Son. Capt. Mallock has been on Georges, way to the southern edge, and saw no fish, indeed he says one could not see them, if there were any, so bad has been the weather which was worse than he experienced all winter.

The mackerel catch at the Magdalene Islands, Prince Edward Island and points in that vicinity has thus far this season been very satisfactory. At the present time at Prince Edward Island, there is about 1000 barrels of salt mackerel on hand which are selling from $9 to $10 per barrel. The hookers having been doing well of late, and the prospect is encouraging. About 200 barrels were received in this city last week.

FRESH FISH WANTED.

Receipts of Finny Denizens Very Light Indeed.

T WHARF DEALERS FEEL IT.

Bad Weather and Lack of Bait the Cause.

Not for years has such a scarcity of all kinds of fish been apparent in the local and Boston markets, and both ports are feeling the effects very severely of the bad weather at sea for the past three weeks. Receipts of all kinds of fish here have been very light, and at Boston the market fleet arrivals have been very few and far between. For this time of the year it is a state of affairs indeed remarkable. In consequence of the meagre supply, high prices prevail in all lines and the lucky fishers who arrive with fares reap the reward in proportion.

At T wharf the situation is the worst for years.

"There is no fresh fish in the market, and we haven't a pound in the store," said F. J. O'Hara, the prominent Atlantic avenue fish merchant, when asked if there was any improvement in the market yesterday afternoon. "The weather has been against us in many ways. Our fishing vessels could not go out many of these stormy days, and when they did get out they couldn't get any catch. Besides the greatest difficulty of all was that we have not been able to get enough bait."

As Mr. O'Hara says, the stormy weather has not been the only drawback, for lack of bait has hampered the fleet to a very marked extent. For the past month bait has, despite a few spurts, been a very scarce article, and at present a very large fleet is at Provincetown waiting for some to turn up.

Good Stock.

Sch. Gossip, Capt. Antone Courant, stocked $3050 as the result of her recent fresh and salt trip, the crew sharing $85.

TAKING MACKEREL.

Several Vessels Reported Making Hauls Off Eastern Point.

The fleet of the seiners are leaving the harbor and following the schools which seem to be making their way toward half-way rock. The fish are in small schools and are quite wild. Sch. Agnes E. Downs secured 75 barrels and sch. Marguerite Haskins got eight barrels. The latter vessel had her fare sent to port by a gasoline launch. Some of the vessels set near the shore and breakwater, and in consequence some of their seines were torn.

A dory load of porgies from sch. Elsie E. Rowe, was sent in this noon.

The fleet are now standing off and on between Eastern Point and Halfway Rock and will hang on for the sundown spurt.

Sch. Angilena made a set just outside the breakwater about 1.45 and bailed in for about 20 minutes.

This week ends the mackerel fishing at L'Ardoise and all hands seem satisfied. From all reports the mackerel fishing, both in quantity and quality, has been the best in this neighborhood for many years. If prices keep up, some of the men stand to make a good season's work. Scarcely any other fish were taken, as it was impossible to attend to them.

Five American schooners passed Port Mulgrave bound south on Wednesday.
